Captain John Fitzgerald, of Richmond, Among the Injured - Telephone Lines Down and Long Delay Before Assistance Could be Secured from Wilmington to Render Aid.

WILMINGTON, N. C., August 7 .- A terrible cyclone passed over Carolina Beach, fifteen miles below Wilmington. at 3 o'clock last night, completely wreckteen people, several probably fatally. The cyclone came up suddenly and traveled in a narrow path. The hotel was the only house on the beach in its path, and its eighteen occupants were carried down in the wreck. The wind came up so suddenly nobody had a chance to get out of the building. Only four persons es-caped injury, three children and one man. Among those hurt was Captain John Fitzgerald, of Richmond, who sustained serious injuries about the chest. All in the house at the time were pinned down in the wreck, and men and women mingled their cries for help. The terrible situation was intensified by the heavy downpour of rain. The night was dark as ink. How any one of the guests es-caped instantaneous death is miraculous. IN GREAT AGONY.

All were removed from the wreck in an hour except Hampton Smith, a young ice chest and heavy timbers which crushed his legs. It took three hours to get him out. So great was his agony. he begged those who were trying to re-lease hi mto kill him and enous suffer-

The wounded were carried to a store and given all the treatment possible to relieve their sufferings, but the beach as lifteen miles from Wilmington, and all telephonic communication was cut off. It was not until 4 o'clock this morning that a messenger arrived on foot with news of the disaster. The injured were not in the hands of the physicians until 6 o'clock. Their suf-ferings for so many hours was awful. The wounded were brought to the city or special boat sent down after them, and the most seriously injured were sent to the hospital, others to their homes in

All are doing as well as possible. No other property on the beach was dam-aged. The cyclone is said to have been one of the most terrific that ever visited this section. The hotel was not run on elaborate scale, hence small number of guests. The storm at Wrightsville Beach was of no consequence. The Oceanic Hotel was an old structure, used conjointly as a pavilion for excur-sionists and as a hotel. Without warning of approaching danger the cyclone struck the beach, and the hotel was of its passege. Nobody had time to escape from the building, and all went down in the crash. The injured were made as comfortable as possible, but there was not a dector on the beach and telephonic communication with Wilming-ton was cut off. No news of the terrible needent was received here until six hours ofter the cyclone. A messenge was sent to Wilmington on foot to get a passenger boat and physicians for the wounded, but the storm had blown so many trees across the road that he made slow progress The wounded were brought to the city twelve hours after the accident, and most of them sent to the hospitals. The Hotel Oceanic was owned by the New Hanover Transit Company. The loss is total, with damage amounting to several thousand dollars. Only partial insurance. Soveral wounded are not expected to live

(Special Dispatch to The Times.) HOT SPRINGS, VA., August 7 .- The fourteenth annual meeting of the State Bar Association is now but a memory the annual banquet to-night bringing the session to a happy close. No previous meeting has been attended by as many of the members, and among the members present there were Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Attorney-General, Supreme Judges, Congressmen, and ex-Speaker of the House and other distinguished men.

Judge James B. Gantt, the annual speaker was accorded quite an ovation this morning and since his stay has added many to his already long list of friends and admirers. In introducing the speaker, Major Elder fitly remarked that Judge Gantt loved Virginia with an intensity equalled only by those who resided with-in her bounds, and Judge Gantt several times referred in his address to scenes revived by a visit to the State, where he had received his education and under whose Jackson he had fought.

Judge Gantt and his interesting party, Miss Jewid Weidemeyer, will leave Hot Springs in the morning for Richmond.

JUDGE GARNETT'S SPEECH.

After a graceful preface Judge Gantt invoked consideration of the Relation to and Importance of the Nisi Prius Judge in our Judicial System. He said in part: Not as an apologist, neither as eulogist, will I discuss him. As an actor in a drama, so common to the boards, he by way of depreciation. But as he is a necessary factor in the system, this is an opportune time to measure him, to weigh him and ascertain if he is worth retaining as he is, and if not, see how he can be improved and how far he may rely on this and similar associations to aid him. ## ATTORNEY GEN'L KNOX FLOORED BY CRAMP, THE SHIP-BUILDER

Member of Cabinet Knocked Out by Cramp and Others in an Aristocratic Cafe at Atlantic City-All About Trusts.

(Special Dispatch to The Times.)
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., August 7.—Attorney-General Knox was the victim of a brutal and apparently unwarranted attack here late last night in the cafe of an aristocratic hotel. The cause of the assault on Mr. Knox was his attitude against the trusts. His assailants were Charles T. Schoen, the multi-millonaire, of Philadelphia and Pittsburg; Theodore Cramp, the Philadelphia ship-builder, and a Mr. Stevenson, also well known in Philadelphia. Attorney-General Knox was knocked out in the argument, not figuratively, but literally. He was attacked by three men, and superior numbers defeated him. Theodore Cramp is the man who delivered the blow that landed squarely on the cabinet member's solar plexus. It was a right-hander that sent the Attorney-General spinning backward. It would have General spinning backward. It would have done credit to the mighty Jeffries, or the erstwhile marvel Fitzsimmons.

But to make clear the dramatic features of this impetuous argument it is necessary to go back a little. The place of its occurrence was a certain aristocratic hotel; the time, 11:30 last night. In the cafe annex, a rustic little nook adjoining the cafe of the garden, was a table of eight covers, all of which were occupied. The central figure at this tuble cupied. The central figure at this table was Attorney-General Knox. Seated with him were three other men and four women.

They were enjoying a quiet dinner after a day of amusement. Mr. Knox and his party were well along with their repast when a carriage drove up to the hotel. Three men alighted, one with no little difficulty, for it was quite apparent that he had been drinking, Charles T. Scheen and Theodore Cramp were two members of this party. The third was a Mr. Stevenson, who is well known in Frilladelphia.

The three men made their way into the cafe annex and took seats at a small table under a mellow incandescent light. Their table was about ten feet distant

Mr. Schoen, Mr. Cramp and Mr. Steven-son at once began a rather lively con-versation, apparently oblivious of the fact that at a nearby table were several women. They took no pains to modulate their voices, nor were they over zealous in the choice of their words. At that time they appeared to be ignorant of the fact that a member of President Roosevelt's Cabinet and a party of his friends were seated at an adjoining table. Perhaps the identity of Mr. Knox was obscured in the dull rays of the lights in the cafe anand more boisterous.

leaned over the table at which Mr. Schoen, Mr. Cramp and Mr. Stevenson were seated. He requested them to moderate their voice and refrain from using objectionable language. He said that the party at the next table objected to their immoderate conduct. Thereupon the the first time they took cognizance of the presence of Attorney-General Knox and his party. But only a few minutes had elapsed when Mr. Schoen, Mr. Cramp and Mr. Stevenson resumed their animated conversation. Again came a quiet appeal from the waiter that they should not ignore the presence of ladies in the cafe appex. cafe annex.

Again an apology was sent to the party at Attorney-General Knox's table, and for a few minutes the loud talk was suppressed. But soon it broke out afresh. But soon it broke out afresh. Police Court on yesterday. It grew more and more sultry and according to several witnesses Mr. Schoen began to make disparaging reference to Mr. Knox. It was said that it was based on the Attorney-General's hostile attitude to-ward trusts. He did not admire the At-torney-General's step in the direction of their dissolution and said so.

Just who struck the first blow cannot be said positively, but certain it is that even while Mr. Knox was making a protest to Mr. Schoen against his intemperate lan-Mr. Schoen against his intemperate language he was being called names that startled everyone within hearing. "You are a cur!" cried Mr. Schoen, as he rose from the table and launched his fists wildly at Mr. Krox. Mr. Cramp and Mr. Stevenson, too, were active in the war of words. Then came a blow. It was struck by Mr. Cramp, and landed fairly on the belt of the Attorney-General, who found himself opposed by three men, all much larger and heavier than he. The blow staggered him back against the wall. At that moment a half dozen walters rushed staggered him back against the wall. At that moment a half dozen walters rushed up. The head walter seized Mr. Cramp from behind, pinioning his arms. Another grappled with Mr. Stevenson and dragged him out of the struggle. Others took hold of Mr. Schoen.
Mr. Knox was speedily surrounded by his friends, and they quietly retired from the cafe and were driven away to their hotel. The blow he received from Mr Cramp had stunned him for a moment but he quickly recovered. The noise and (Special Dispatch to The Times.)
